PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

As the president of the Class of '44, it is my privilege to say a few words to you in behalf of my classmates.

First of all - - not because it is traditional, but because we are extremely grateful - - I want to thank our faculty. We are sincere in saying that we think we have the finest principal in the State, and to Mr. Rowe we have dedicated our year-book. Perhaps it is not a great honor, but it is our way of saying to him that he stands second to none in our admiration. We have had for three years, the most ardent and energetic class advisor any class could hope to have. Under Mrs. Gough's guidance we have done well in dramatics and all other school affairs, even to the extent of having the highest financial status of any class in some years. To the faculty we know that all we can say is, "We thank you."

We especially want to wish the four boys who enlisted and entered the service prior to graduation the best of luck. Some of the rest of us will leave following the graduation exercises, and some will have to stay here at more important work or for reasons beyond our control. One thing I should like to say is that I do not think it within the jurisdiction of any of you to judge us as individuals. There is nothing that annoys me more than to hear conversation concerning the patriotism of a youth. I hope you refrain from asking questions such as, "Why hasn't he been drafted?" or "Why has he been deferred?" I feel that each one, not only in my class but in all the high school, will be doing his or her best for the war effort. There are probably very good reasons, about which you know nothing, why some are not doing all you think they should. If you consider there is something radically wrong, confine it to your own thoughts.

We realize this war is an interruption in our careers, but one should not expect life always to be free and easy. In this war we may possibly find new careers, but of paramount importance, we may find ourselves better citizens both mentally and morally as a result.

There is not a great deal to say to you members of Waterbury High School for 1945. You all realize that there are ample opportunities in our school. You know what they are, and the alumni have made it very emphatic that in these days and in preparation for the revolutionary trends to come, you must make the most of them. Do not ever think, as some have, that because you are in your first year or last year of high school or because there is a war on, you do not have to study. Your knowledge and your ability to apply it in your chosen field is important to you today as well as in the future. The more we educate ourselves, the finer government we may formulate.

In a short time we shall receive our diplomas. They will not mean as much through the years as will our happy memories of our years at W. H. S. and our accomplishments here. We have come a long way in the past twelve years and it is now time for the Class of '44 to go out and make a name for itself. In a few years we will be living in one of the greatest ages of history and we are fortunate to have had such a fine school and faculty to help prepare us for it.

JAMES MALCOLM HOLWAY

CLASS HISTORY '44

As I sit on the top of the ladder of success, with my chin in my hands and a dreamy faraway look in my eye, I feel a hand touch my shoulder very lightly. I turn my head slowly around to see who it is that is disturbing my reminiscing silence. As I gaze around, my eyes fall upon a sweet little woman with beautiful white hair and twinkling blue eyes.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" I ask.

"I am the light of Guidance", she answers and I have been watching you. You are terribly lonely and sad, aren't you?"

"Why - Why, yes, but how did you know?" I reply.

I've seen many just as you are, sorry to be through school, sorry to leave your childhood memories and friends. Am I not right?"

"Why, yes, I guess you are, at that. We've all had such grand times together, it's going to be hard to leave."

Then she touches my shoulder once more and says, "I know just the remedy for you, Miss Success. Would it make you feel better, my dear, if you could go back to your first day of school, in recollection, of course, and relive your twelve school years?"

"Oh", I sigh, "if I only could, then I know I would be content to go on my merry way."

"Well, you can my dear," she promises, "and you shall. Now listen closely, shut your eyes, be very still and concentrate - - remember - - remember- - remember - -".

"Remember the first grade when you along with twenty eight other little boys and girls came to school feeling as big and important as anyone in the whole, wide world. The girls wore their best dresses, with all the frills and ruffles, and huge hairbows that covered half their heads. The boys strutted like kings in their first suits.

"Your teacher was to be Miss Harriet Mehuron. She taught you the alphabet and reading and writing. This was the year you exhibited your talents to the world and radio audience. All students with any talents whatsoever (And you'd be surprised how many students suddenly became talented) had an afternoon off to go up to WDEV. Rusty Parker took the prize by rending in beautiful strains of heavenly music, unknown to the human ear, "Springtime in the Rockies."

"You found yourselves in the capable hands of Miss Kate Mehuron in the second year. It was under her direction that you first learned to add and subtract. This was also the year in which Jack Barry first took an interest in sports. Being sent home to his parents one day for bad conduct he stealthily entered by the rear door and listened to the World Series. This little episode resulted in Jack's being sent back to the second grade B, for five whole days, during which time, you received more education than you had received all year, up to that time.

"In the third year you went into the room of Miss Bertha Joslyn. She was a very good disciplinarian, which was exactly what you needed. This was the year you won the singing contest in the grades. Mr. Willis, while visiting your music class one day, said you sounded like so many little angels. Little he knew of your character!!

"As you ventured into the fourth grade, you learned that Miss Andrus, your teacher, could stand almost anything except gum chewing. Although "Rusty" Parker was just a little tike then, he used to chew some of the biggest, super-duper gobs of penny bubble-gum you ever saw. You were so afraid he'd choke on it, but he always got the best of it.

"Then Jane Magnus, forever whispering to Everett Ford with stars in her eyes and a lump in her throat, finally got caught one day by Miss Andrus, and as a punishment, Jane had to sit with him for the rest of the day. But it really was no punishment, as a matter of fact, she enjoyed it immensely!

"This was the year Dario Palermo attained his first characteristic of a Romeo. He was the envy of all the boys, for he had long pants!

"A new member joined your 'big happy family' this year, Jeanne Hall, from Montpelier, who was later to become one of the best liked members of your class, a truly wonderful girl.

"Your fifth year was a very exciting one. Under the guidance of Mrs. Beulah Miller you learned long division and fractions. With fear in your innocent, little hearts of her razor strap in the cupboard, you behaved yourselves really well. This year Jack Barry caused a big alarm, a fire alarm! It seems he was reciting up in front of class. Being nervous, he was running his fingers up and down the wall where the bells were located. As his finger hit the fire alarm bell, students and teachers alike went pouring out of the building a hundred strong. A very surprised, amused and yet sorry Jack faced the members of the faculty that night after school. Another interesting incident occurred when Ken Guptil was playing baseball against the fourth grade team. He was supposed to be the star. When his team lost, and he hadn't made the home run that he had promised his father, who was sitting on the bleachers, the poor little boy just sat down and cried and cried and cried. He was so disappointed in himself!

"As you entered the sixth grade you found the work was getting harder and you would have to settle down and work. Danny Ryder seemed to have his mischievous streak in this class. Especially the day Dan found a master key which he thought he might like to try out. So clever little Danny waited until everyone had gone home except Mrs. Rudd, who was still doing some work in her home room, then Danny decided to try his new master-key which resulted in Mrs. Rudd being locked in her room until 6:00 P. M. when Mr. Goodheart came around to sweep. Dan saw quite a bit of Mrs. Rudd for the next six weeks, from three-thirty until six every night.

"It was also in the sixth grade that Jack "Terror" Barry and Reed Winslow decided to play "hookey" and go on an excursion to the Pilgrim Plywood without either escort or permission. Results were an hour after school each day for two weeks. You lost a member of your class this year, Kenneth Rich, who left for Boston and is now in the U. S. Army Air Corps.

"As you entered the Junior High you thought you were just about the most important boys and girls there were. You were so excited when the bells rang, and you might move around. Your teacher was Miss Flora Carpenter, who is one of the nicest teachers you have ever had, and I doubt if any one of you will ever forget her famous words, "Calm right down now!" This was the first time you had the honor of going to assemblies. You couldn't figure out why the Seniors made so much noise and yet you had to keep so quiet. This bothered Craig Parker more than any other boy or girl. Eric Graves looked forward to the assemblies with much enthusiasm. He had a crush on nearly every girl in school, and assembly was the only time he could see them all together.

"At last you were entering High School. The great day was here when you might be considered high school students. At the beginning of the year the following officers were chosen: Pres. Danny Ryder, Vice Pres. John Woods, Sec. Frances Danyew, Treas. Nancy Ryder.

"The Girls' A. A. presented a stunt night to raise money. The girls of your class won second prize. The greatest thrill of this year was the Freshman Reception, at which you had to perform as cannibals. Your dignity was lessened a little, but it was then you first learned the true meaning of sportsmanship.

"Ken Guptil, your ace athlete, won the foul-shooting contest, with a score of 24 out of 25 shots, and the best part of it was it didn't make him a bit conceited. The girls lost the basketball tournament to the Seniors by one point. The boys were third in the class tournament this year, and they have been the champions ever since.

"For your Sophomore year you elected Mac Holway as Pres., Emma Izor, Vice Pres., Fanny Danyew, Sec., and Nancy Ryder, Treas.

"You presented your first one-act play this year, entitled "Rich Man, Poor Man!" This had a large cast of people playing character roles and visiting a rummage sale conducted by Nancy Ryder and John Woods, who donated almost all of the clothes he was wearing.

"We lost three outstanding members of our class. Jeanne Hall, who transferred to Peace Junior College in Raleigh, North Carolina, Danny Ryder to Vermont Junior College and Dorothy Haskins to Burlington High School.

"For your Junior year, John Woods was elected Vice-President and the other officers remained the same. The Junior Prom, the highlight of the year, was a great success. The theme was a Mexican Fiesta, and many praises go to every person who so willingly cooperated to make your Prom something for you to remember in the years to come. As your one-act play this year, you presented "Sugar and Spice". The cast was Nancy Ryder, Pauline Mobus, Martha Wright, John Woods and Ed Ward. The boys won the basketball and football tournament. Two members of your class, Lionel Culver and Harry Marden left to join the service. Lionel is now in the United States Army and Harry is in the United States Marines. We are proud of these boys and wish them all the luck in the world.

"One member of your class must have been working hard and accomplished a lot. Martha Wright found out that she already had enough points to graduate although she had attended high school only three years.

"Finally you were beginning the last and most important year of your school career. Everyone was full of hope and anxiety. The only change in class officers was again in the Vice-Preisdency; this honor went to Ken Guptil.

"Two plays were given in the fall. The first was a three-act comedy, "Sixteen in August." The cast was a large one and introduced two new actors in leading roles, Leo Gadaree and Mac Holway. In the one-act play contest you presented "Sparkin' ". You won first place, but the best was yet to come, and on March 22, you entered the Northern Tournament held here at Waterbury. As a result of your high score you were eligible to participate in the State Festival at Middlebury. Although you did not win, the experience was a delightful one for the group attending, namely, Pauline Mobus, Emma Izor, Jane Magnus, John Woods and James Boyce.

"Kenneth Guptil was elected Captain of baseball, basketball and football. He certainly was an all-around athlete and was one of the best basketball guards in the State. Unfortunately, Pete Martin left before the basketball season was finished. You also had Eddie Ward, star center, and Jack Barry, stellar forward. All honors go to Jack Barry, who made the All-Tournament Team for the State.

"Two Senior girls represented your class in basketball and did a splendid piece of guarding, Ann Burnham and Eva Herbert. Eva was Captain for two years and won state-wide recognition.

"Two of your classmates, Pete Martin and Wayne Slack left before graduation to fight for Uncle Sam. Pete is now in the United States Army Air Corps and Wayne is in the Navy. We miss these boys and wish them lots of luck.

"Soon came the much heralded event, the Junior Prom. This was the first event given in your honor. Many thanks go to the class of '45 for an enjoyable evening I'm sure you will never forget."

The little old lady fades away and I find myself smiling in happy recollection. Now, our next appearance is to be graduation exercises, and we are here assembled on this 12th day of June, we, the class of 1944. We have finally reached our goal. For twelve long years we've laughed together, played together, worked together, yes, even cried together. And now at last we're here in cap and gown, grown men and women, ready to go out in the world on our own - - we've learned - - we've had fun - - and now we're all on top of the ladder together. Many thanks are due our various teachers for their guidance throughout our school days, and especially to Mrs. Curtis Gough, who has been our patient class advisor throughout our three years of High School. Last, but not least, we shall never forget our principal, Mr. Rowe, who is a man well worth remembering through the years to come.

And so, with tearful eyes and a heavy heart I wish to bid each and every classmate goodbye. It's been grand knowing you and may we meet again someday. A special goodbye to our boys whom we know will be leaving us directly after graduation to join the colors. All the luck in the world to you, boys, and when the world is right again - - well, we'll see you then. Good bye, good luck and may God bless you all, and in parting may I say - - - "We've come a long way together - - and we still have a long way to go."

CLASS ESSAY

"Pro Deo, Pro Patria"

"For God and for Country" is the motto that we, the third war class of Waterbury High School, have chosen for our pledge.

Since the days of the Revolution, five wars have been fought for our country. We are now in the midst of the most horrible one of all. We have to fight this war to save our country and our faith in God aids us.

Many of our fathers fled their native countries because they did not have freedom of religion. They came to the new world and settled where they could worship as they pleased. However, the fight for freedom of religion was not yet won for some of these settlements would not let those of other denominations settle amongst them. Roger Williams founded the colony of Rhode Island so that several denominations could live together in peace. Freedom of Religion was instilled in the minds of Americans from then on.

As the colonies grew, England began to realize their worth and began to govern them more closely. Many of the things for which they had fled their homes were taken away from them. Among them were the writ of habeas corpus, trial by jury for many and Freedom of Speech. For these causes and for "no taxation without representation" our ancestors fought the first of these wars, the Revolution. Freedom of Speech is one of the provisions of our Constitution.

The first war following the Revolution was the War of 1812. Perhaps it was fought for Freedom from Want. Our rights as a neutral were respected by neither France nor Britain who were at war. The sons of the Revolution's warriors felt that they must protect and defend our rights or we would forever be in want of economic independence. Also this war was fought to gain more territory. This could be for Freedom from Want also. Our ancestors wanted complete independence and they wished to safeguard it with possessions which could provide them with materials and resources. Freedom from Want was the wish of that generation.

An internal upheaval came in the middle of the 19th century. The slavery question was the main issue. The North fought for the preservation of the Union while the South fought for slavery and the right to secede. The North was the victor and the Union was preserved to aid in the battle against the evils of the world.

The next war, the Spanish-American was fought to safeguard the isolationism of the United States. The country was being built up to take its place as one of the world's leading powers.

In all Europe nationalism, imperialism and capitalism were gaining footholds. The nationalists told their country that it was the best in the world. The imperialists felt that their land should rule the world. Europe became an armed camp as each country prepared to hold its possessions or gain new ones. The capitalists wanted to control trade so the three elements were combined. This made a combination which was bound to explode. The first world war ended in the Treaty of Versailles. A lasting peace could not be expected from a treaty which was oppressive.

Now the greatest and the most destructive battle of all is being fought by nearly every nation of the world. After the armistice there are still battles to be fought and won. The racial question, particularly that of the Jews and Negroes is one of the foremost. However, the bloody conflict must be fought first. I believe that this war is being fought for Freedom from Fear. Freedom from Fear of war, of being conquered or occupied by your neighbor, freedom of civil rights, rights of suffrage. We are fighting for all these. Some of our boys will die, perhaps one of our seniors; yet I do not believe even in the face of death that our boys will flinch. They will fight to the best of their ability for the Four Freedoms. Yes, they will even give their lives for their God and for their Country.

NANCY RYDER.

CLASS POEM

To worship God as we see fit,
To have the right to say our bit,
To have the freedom of the press
And the rights of petition and redress;
These, our unimpeachable rights,
Have lifted our nation to the heights;
And they have fostered our love for thee - -
O Land of the Brave and Home of the Free.

Here, we've learned to abide by the rules
Of life, at Waterbury, school of schools.
We've had our ups and downs, to be sure,
But somewhere found the strength to endure.
And now we're ready to go on our way,
To make the most of every day - -
Armed with knowledge gained in the past,
We will go forth undaunted to the last.

ANNE V. BURNHAM.

CLASS SONG

We are the class of nineteen forty-four.
We've reached our goal, and now we're suited for Life ahead, and may it be success
That bids us all to reverently bless
Our old high school.

And now the promise of new days leads us on,
Homage and love, and courage for the dawn
Of that new world when peace shall reign again
And every man respect his fellow-men,
A Golden Rule.

BEVERLY TEWKSBURY.

CLASS JINGLES

Eddie Ward:

Eddie is a quiet lad
With girl friends, oh galore!
Just put a basketball in his hands,
And you know he's bound to score.

Frances Hyacinth Danyew:

Fanny sings just like a bird
That flits from tree to tree;
But the sweetest song she ever heard
Is "The Grocer Boy For Me".

Jack Barry:

Jack is our Frank Swoonatra
And how he loves to spoon!
In his bass voice he serenades
And of course the girls all swoon.

Nancy Ryder:

Nancy "I know" Ryder
Doesn't know it enough;
She's going on to college,
And learn to get men tough.

Andrew Revoir:

Andy is our baby.
He's artistic, I don't mean maybe.
Soon off to the Navy he'll go
And bid farewell to Mary Rowe.

Anne Burnham:

Anne is our Good Citizenship Girl.
She certainly does deserve it;
But her hair doesn't often curl,
And the men don't bother her . . . . Yet!

Eva Herbert:

Eva is a tall girl
Who's good at any sport.
Just hand her a basketball;
She'll play you off the court.

Pauline Mobus:

Little Pauline Mobus
Is most industrious;
"But watch her eye,"
Said one guy,
Very well known to us.

Martha Johnson:

Martha is our blonde
Short, cute and prim
She wants to be a stenog
So her future won't be dim.

Marianna Beaton:

Marianna stands tall and straight;
No, we don't know her exact weight,
But we have heard some boys say, "Gee,
I wish she would sit on my knee."

Stewart Tibbitts:

"Rip Van Winkle" Tibbitts
We call him up at school.
There's not one class he stays awake;
He breaks our Golden Rule.

Beverly Tewksbury:

Beverly is the most original of girls,
Quite exemplary with her curls;
And when it comes to boys, she'd know
Just what to do and where to go.

Ken Guptil:

Ken is a quiet lad.
His favorite name is June.
In fine clothes he is clad
And she'll sit and swoon.

Emma Izor:

Emma Izor,
Queen of the Alley,
Is no eye-sore
In this little valley.

Leo Gadaree:

Leo is a glamor boy.
He dresses fit to kill
And how the girls do go for him!
It gives him quite a thrill.

Robert Morse:

Robert Morse, quiet and calm,
Is a fellow who comes straight from the farm.
When the faculty is angry, he can't see,
Why he shouldn't spread more of his subtle glee.

Donald Tyler:

Don is a grocer;
He works with points and stamps.
He never helps black markets.
He isn't lured by blondes and vamps.

Marion Eastman:

Marion Eastman is a diligent soul,
Who doesn't care much for the boys,
But we know there is at her ultimate goal
A gentleman, not making much noise.

Maurice Davis:

Maurice is a studious lad,
A senior, serious and bold.
He does his deeds for his loyal class,
Our honor he does hold.

Benjamin Boardman:

Benny Boardman, as you can see,
Is just as full as he can be
Of lines and stories full of, "Gee,
I love ya' honey, don't ya' see?"

Bernol Dow:

Bernol is our class angel;
And this we do not doubt,
He's tall, blonde and lovely
And never does he pout.

Eric Graves:

Eric Graves,
The printer's devil,
Says he shaves,
That's on the level.

James Boyce:

Jimmy is our carpenter
Who's always on the job.
He'll do anything to help the class
And even Patrol the mob.

Wayne Slack:

Wayne Slack, the grocer boy,
Is wearing the Navy blue.
The hardest job he's had all year,
Was saying, "Tillie, I'll be true."

Craig Parker:

Craig is a funny boy;
Dario he tried to scare,
But when he looked behind the door
Mr. Rowe was there.

Loren Morse and David Callahan:

Loren Morse is a quiet kid,
But you can always tell his call,
"Look out Dave, I've got you now,
Right behind the eight ball."

Wayne Drinkwater:

Wayne is our class shrimp
And Martha he did court.
For her he would always primp.
Her future home's his airport.

Wayland Martin:

Pete Martin joined the Army;
He wanted to learn to fly.
He used to be a tame fellow
'Till Charlotte caught his eye.

Dario Palermo:

Dario is our Casanova
Who's nuts about Irene,
And when he goes a'courtin' her
She doesn't seem so green.

Donald Silloway:

Donald is a literary fiend
That comes from the Center of Waterbury.
There isn't a novel he hasn't gleaned
Starting with Micky Mouse's glory.

Mac Holway

Mac is our President
For whom we have respect.
The Navy is his residence
And Japs he soon will wreck.

Jane Magnus, my worthy assistant

Has proven her talent for sure.
But this I can add
And not make her mad,
For men, Jane holds much allure.

John Woods:

John is our radio man
Who courts a girl named Steele.
She is an ardent radio fan;
Often he sends her in reels.

MEMOIRS OF A TRAMP

You may wonder why, in choosing a year for my memoirs, I have chosen to write about the year 1960. I should explain that I think this year to be an indicatory meter of the trends of the times and so give you this year as a cross-section of this great decade and the ones following it.

On a bright summer day (as good as any to start a tale), I was strolling down Holway boulevard, formerly called South Main Street, but recently changed to commemorate the fact that Malcolm Holway, treasurer of the world government, once lived there, when I chanced upon Jack Barry. You remember Jack. He was the Sports Editor of the "New York Times," but was recently promoted to Editor-in-Chief. He told me that he saw Frances Danyew, the television star, when she made her personal appearance in New York. He also saw Wayne Slack, her chauffeur, who was driving Miss Danyew's helicopter back to Hollywood to get her co-star, Bernard Boardman, who is at present playing in the Western "Fear Not, Fair Beauty" or "Buck Boardman Rides Again."

I continued on up the street and turned in at the "Midstate Alleys" to see if I couldn't get to see the rich bowling magnate, Emma Izor. Finally, Pauline Mobus (who's the real brains of the corporation) let me in to see her. After inquiring about mutual acquaintances, I asked for a loan, but she suggested that I contact John Woods, who is managing the local television station. As I turned to leave, I happened to think that she might know the whereabouts of some other friends who might be soft-hearted to a deserving tramp. She knew that Eric Graves had charge of the Bureau of Engraving in Washington, but couldn't think of anyone else who might have money.

I then decided that the only thing left to do was to see Morse and Morse, the famous gamblers, who had broken the bank at Monte Carlo only seven days before. As I waited in the office, I picked up an old copy of "Esquire" with the famous Revoir girls. Finally Dave Callahan came out of the office and invited me in. I hear that he's the one who discovered the only way to beat the one-armed bandits. Inside, Marianna Beaton, the landlady, was informing the Morses that they must either leave the Johnson and Beaton office building or pay up the rent. I knew that this was no place for a loan, so I took the elevator to the street floor. Who should be running the elevator but Stew Tibbits, who explained that the elevator got him in practice for demonstrating his new rocket-cycle. On the ground floor, I stopped to say hello to Martha Johnson, co-owner of the building. She seemed to be having troubles, too, for she was complaining to the phone, "But, Dario, you must clean the building before next month. . . . Alright." She explained that she had been talking to Dario Palermo of the International Janitoring Co., of which he was president.

On my way out, I met Bernol Dow, owner of the Skinem Finance Co., who was just coming in to negotiate a loan to the Silloway-Tyler Construction Company. It seemed that the partnership was breaking up, as Don Tyler wanted to buy out the Tripp Grocery Store and Don Silloway just wanted to buy a comfortable bed.

At the Swanky Clothing Store, Leo Gadaree was just finishing the sale of a $50,000 mink coat to Nancy Ryder, the famous Broadway actress, now appearing with "Frankenstein" Davis in the production "Cyanide and Silk." Nancy and Maurice both attribute the success of the show to James Boyce, who is in charge of the scenery for the play.

While I was trying to haggle a loan from Leo, Beverly Tewksbury, who writes feature stories for "The Women's Home Companion," stepped into the store. She said she was writing a story about how Jane Magnus came to be Hollywood's most famous scandal reporter. It seems Jane got her start writing a column about New York night life entitled "My Night".

As a last resort, I decided to telegraph Ed Ward and Pete Martin, who are touring the country demonstrating their new game, hoopless basketball. On entering the telegraph office, I met Anne Burnham, who, as head of the International Red Cross was telegraphing comedian Wayne Drinkwater to request a benefit performance. I asked her if she chanced to know of any beneficent people who might spare a few cents. She headed me toward Marion Eastman, principal of the Exclusive Girls' School. As I entered her office, she was explaining to Eva Herbert about the new educational program for stewardesses of the Stratoliners, of whom Eva is the director.

This seems to conclude my ramble around the old town and my meetings with the class of '44. 1960 may seem like a long time ago to some of you, but to me it's as clear as yesterday, for it was in this year that I did my first lick of work on the 20,000-acre, all-mechanized farm of Ken Guptil. So you see, if I had written this about 1961 or after I might not have called it "Memoirs of a Tramp."

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club elected the following officers for the year: Pres. Nancy Ryder, Vice Pres. Mary Lib Randall, Treas. Jane Magnus and Sec. Andrew Revoir.

At the one act play contest in December, "Sparkin' " presented by the Seniors, won over "Five for Bad Luck" given by the Juniors and "Luncheon for Six" the Sophomore play. "Sparkin' " was then pronounced second in the district contest and went to the State Festival at Middlebury.

Two good three-act plays were presented during the year: "Sixteen in August" with a cast of Seniors, and "The Arrival of Kitty", with a Junior cast. A feature of the latter play was the fine impersonation of a girl by Leslie Halen.

W. H. S. Presents

For the past two years, Waterbury High School has had the distinction of being the only school in Vermont to have a weekly series of broadcasts, and is recognized as the only high school in the State to sponsor programs. This series produced and directed by John Woods, and engineered by Craig Parker is heard every Friday at 1:00 P. M.

Special thanks go to Lloyd Squire, John Williams, Radio Station WDEV, Miss French, Mrs. Lionel Hayes, Mrs. Post, Miss Betty Cole, Jack Barry, Modern Pharmacy and the many others who have helped make this program possible.

MUSIC

Music is one of the most important of the cultural arts. It is a great factor in molding a good cultural background, and hence must be well organized and directed. We feel that in W. H. S. we have a varied educational and enjoyable musical program.

The music classes meet two and three times a week and are spent in studying composers, types of the art and general musical background. We have special groups which rehearse once a week. One is the Boys' Glee Club, which is composed of thirty boys from the four upper classes. Next is the Girls' Glee Club, which is composed of thirty girls from the senior high school. Combining these two groups we have the Mixed Glee Club, which consists of fifty boys and girls who sing in the choral groups.

The Band is another of our musical organizations, and the members number approximately twenty-five. They have entertained on Armistice Day, and will appear Memorial Day and also at Graduation. The Band is directed by Mr. Barberi from Barre.

One specialty group is the Girls' Sextet, which has entertained many times at local clubs with very beautirul selections. The 1943-44 Sextet is a very talented array of girls and has as first sopranos, Nancy Ryder and Jean LaFleur, second sopranos, Emma Izor and Elaine Horner, altos, Jane Magnus and Mary Rowe.

Another of these groups is the Boys' Double Quartet. They do serious numbers, but infect their audience with laughter in their renditions of fast, rollicking numbers. They have sung for town clubs, in assemblies and on the school programs. The boys making up the Quartet are first tenors, John Magnus and Howard Naylor, first basses, Jack Barry and John Woods, second basses, Edwin Ward and Leo Gadaree.

Put these two organizations together and there is a fine combination of well-blended voices capable of seven-part harmony.

We, in Waterbury High School, owe Miss Elizabeth Cole most appreciative and heartfelt thanks. She has worked with these groups all year, and has done her utmost to make them the best possible representatives of Waterbury High School at the Vermont Music Festival. We, the members of the Senior class, owe a special vote of thanks to Mrs. Hazel Hayes, who tutored us in our first three years of high school.

JACK BARRY.

SPORTS

BASKETBALL

The basketball squad reported to Coach Corsones exceptionally early this year in preparation for a tough season, which proved to be a hectic one for any coach to keep a team together. The first mishap was the loss of our ace forward, "Pete" Martin, to the Army Air Corps. The second blow came when Bobby Luce and Will Hall, two of our most capable reserves, were put out by an appendectomy.

At midseason another change came; this time it was the coach. Mr. Carcieri, the new coach, came to W. H. S. from East Greenwich, Rhode Island. He attended Providence University; while there he played four years of football and was also active in baseball and basketball.

Despite these losses and changes we won eleven games and lost seven. We crashed our way into the Northern Basketball Tourney by quenching the "Orange Flame" of Newport by the score of 49 to 29. Our first and only game at the Tournament was with the Winooski Millers, which by the way we had previously defeated twice during the early part of our season. However, they were a much improved ball club, and we proved an easy victory for them. The team that represented W. H. S. at the Tournament was composed of Jack Barry, Max Irish, Ed Ward, Buck Howes, Les Durett, Walt Guptil, Johnny Magnus, Ben Boardman, Howard Naylor, and Captain Ken Guptil. Jack Barry was picked for the All Tournament Team, an honor justly deserved by him.

In writing this article I am sure I represent the team in saying that we appreciate every thing that Coach Corsones and Coach Carcieri did for us during the season, and also we thank Mr. Rowe for all he did in making our season a successful one.

In intra-mural basketball the Seniors again took the honors, an accomplishment they have done for the past three years.

FOOTBALL

A fairly large squad reported to Coach Corsones last fall; but due largely to lack of transportation facilities and the scarcity of six-man football teams a schedule failed to materialize.

CROSS COUNTRY

A good, hardworking squad led by their able Captain, Dave Callahan, reported to Mr. Rowe for practice. Nevertheless their activities were also confined to practice. No meets were scheduled.

BASEBALL

A likely looking group of prospective ball players reported for baseball this spring. At first, practice was held in the gym, but the boys were able to get out onto the field about two weeks before the first game. Games have been scheduled with Morrisville (2), Stowe (2), Richmond (2), Waitsfield (2) and Randolph (2).

KEN GUPTIL.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Basketball season started off with a bad beginning for us. We played Morrisville and were defeated by quite a margin.

After a few weeks of stiff practice under the supervision of Miss Betty Cole we ventured to Winooski where we easily won a victory.

Throughout the season we continued victorious, by winning two games from the following: St. Albans, Burlington, Winooski, Bethel, Stowe and Waitsfield. We had a second game with Morrisville and won evening the score they set in the early season.

Our season closed with a play off against Bristol for Championship of the State. We lost this game by one point, the score being 20-19.

Our three star forwards, Capt. Bette Marden, Sally Randall and Arlene West, will be on hand next year to carry on for the Orange and Black. The only players that we will lose are two guards, Capt. Eva Herbert and Anne Burnham. Mary Rowe, veteran guard will return next year to spark the back court half of the team.

We wish you all the luck in the world for your team next year, Coach Cole, and we know you will come out victorious.

CLASS WILL

Hear Ye, Hear Ye, Hear Ye:

Now be it known that we, the honorable and dignified members of the Senior Class, do hereby wish to leave behind us in the honored and hallowed halls of Waterbury High School something reminiscent of our four glorious years here. We hope that we have set a noteworthy example to the other High School and Junior High School students. The honorable class of "44" does hereby give, devise, and bequeath to the Junior Class our esteemed home room and everything that goes with it. When you take your new seats next year, sit in them with reverence and respect for they are sacred to the memory of the class of "44".

Now we wish to leave to prominent individuals something more tangible that we may remain in spirit if not in mind and body.

I, Robert Morse, to Garland Fletcher my wit, my spot in the boys' smoking room (?), and my height so you can play basketball.

I, Loren Morse, to George Graves my ability to go to school and live a normal life. I also leave to you my title as "The Silent Man" so that you can be better behaved.

I, Pete Martin, to Max Irish my basketball ability, my faculty of doing no school work, all my excuses for tardiness and my answer books.

I, Leo Gadaree, to Wayne Cutting my incomparable dance steps and my beautiful clothes.

I, Jack Barry, to Howard Naylor, my Frank Sinatra voice, my Roy Rogers build, my Errol Flynn personality and my hearty dislike for necking.

I, Mariana Beaton, to Shirley Farwell my shy and unassuming manners, pretty curls and my art of skipping school and getting away with it.

I, Pauline Mobus, to Charlotte Holmes a little of my shortness so that a boy may see your face without a ladder.

I, John Woods, to Bobby Luce my line, my women, my job, my hat, my build and my position as Mrs. Post's favorite boy.

I, Craig Parker, to Lester Durett my ability to apple-polish the teachers, also my beautiful red hair and witty sayings.

I, Stewart Tibbitts, to Edward Robbins my gorilla-like propensities and my tendency to fall asleep in class.

I, Eric Graves, to Nelson Dibbell my outstanding feature of blushing the most gorgeous red that ever was blushed.

I, Jane Magnus, to Marilyn LeBaron my knack of wearing a boy's sport jacket and not looking as if I had on a burlap bag.

I, Eva Herbert, to Betty Marden, next year's Captain of the Girls' Basketball Team, my sympathies.

I, Anne Burnham to any Junior girl who rates it, my title as Good Citizenship Girl. I hope you enjoy the fan mail as much as I did.

I, Mac Holway, to Charles Mason my position as class president, my adding machine mind, my good looks, my studying devices, but most of all my ability to make the girls love me and yet stay away from them.

I, Frances Danyew to Connie Steele, next year's manhater, my charms, my cute giggle, my ability to get marks without doing my work and also my sweater.

I, Wayne Drinkwater, to Buddy Deal my cute curls and lovable demeanor. Out-of-town girls just love me!

I, Donald Silloway, to Trevor Towne my motto, "Never do today what you can put off until tomorrow."

I, Wayne Slack, to Pete Mason my radio knowledge, my glasses and my beard so that you can look like a man.

I, Kenneth Guptil, to Harold Howes my position as Captain of Basketball with all that goes with it in worry, etc., also my ability to woo all the girls.

I, Emma Izor, to Sal Randall my luck in getting men as long as I want them, my necking technique and my kiss-proof lipstick collection.

I, Martha Johnson, to Juanita Hood my giggle, silliness and my effervescence, my cute blush and lisp; it's so coy.

I, Maurice Davis, to Leo Harvey, my muscles, my deep voice, and my big black eyes.

I, Andrew Revoir, to Alan Luce my amazing artistic touch and my beautiful curly hair (so that you won't need to have a "butch cut".), my ability to get good marks and my job at the First National.

I, James Boyce, to Norman Nelson my beautiful voice, my school spirit, my super-salesmanship and my position as Captain of the Patrol.

I, Dario Palermo, to Bobby Ladd my wardrobe, my wave, my contagious laugh, and my wonderful, superb, marvelous, magnificent ability to study.

I, Beverly Tewksbury, to Marilyn Bowers my quiet voice and endearing shyness.

I, David Callahan, to Dick Izor my knack of staying out of school and making Mr. Rowe believe my excuses.

I, Edwin Ward, to John Magnus my superb basketball ability, my good looks, my intelligence and my paper route. But I still collect 10c. for every customer you skip.

I, Marion Eastman, to Margaret Carriveau my quiet demeanor, shy voice and other gentle qualities so that you may become a teachers' pet (It works wonders), also my big feet. I'm going to join the WAVES.

I, Nancy Ryder, to Jean LaFleur my high, soprano voice, my splendid acting ability and my tact for telling a boy that he can't kiss me, in such a nice way that he won't get made at me.

I, Bernol Dow, to Malcolm Whalley my knowledge of taking perfectly straight hair and making a wave that all the girls go crazy over. P. S. I got the tip from Frank Sinatra.

I, Don Tyler, to Walter Guptil my ability to get to school on time, study ten hours every week and still keep up my social life.

I, Ben Boardman, to any other wolf in W. H. S. my lamb's coat and my wonderful technique and my gift-of-gab. It's a great help in wooing and winning a woman.

We, the honorable and esteemed members of the Senior Class, do hereby affix our official seal to this, our last will and testament, given on this day, June 12, 1944 in the year of our Lord. It has been witnessed and found valid by such dignified men as our esteemed President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, England's gallant Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and Russia's stalwart Premier Stalin. We, the, undersigned, leave to all who are, herein, concerned the last of our earthly possessions as an eternal memorial to our career in these hallowed halls. We bid you a sad and fond adieu; don't suffer too much next year.
